

Samia Kassid,

Senior Programme Manager “Future Policy Award and Future Generations”, World Future Council

Samia has been working and advocating for children’s right for decades. Since 2014, she has been working for the World Future Council, where she led the programme “The Rights of Children and Youth” for 10 years. The topics of empowering young people, education for sustainable development and the right to a healthy environment remain a focus of her work, supplemented by the topics rights of future generations and nature. Before joining the World Future Council, she worked as a Child Rights Advisor for the child rights organisation Plan International Germany. As an expert for children’s rights, she is active in German and global networks and alliances that campaign for the rights of children and young people. Samia holds a degree in economics with a focus on development cooperation and environmental policy.
